CHAPTER I

THE EARTH

The Earth is a sphere, and its surface is covered by water and land. The water is called the sea, and the land is called the continents. The sea is divided into oceans, and the continents are divided into countries.

The Earth is divided into four parts, called the quarters, or the quarters of the world. These are the East, the West, the North, and the South. The East is the part of the world which is towards the right hand, when we stand with our back to the Sun.

The North is the part of the world which is towards the top of the page, when we stand with our back to the Sun. The South is the part of the world which is towards the bottom of the page, when we stand with our back to the Sun.

The West is the part of the world which is towards the left hand, when we stand with our back to the Sun. The East is the part of the world which is towards the right hand, when we stand with our back to the Sun.
